

What is JAWS for Windows?

- Job access with speech (JAWS) is used by the blind and visually impaired to read the computer screen aloud using the multilingual Eloquence speech synthesiser.
- The JAWS interface replaces the need for a mouse or screen display to operate your Windows applications.
- Supports standard Windows applications and many other popular programs out of the box.
- Blazie specialise in custom scripting using a special programming language that allows us to adapt JAWS to work with your in house applications.
- JAWS delivers speech and Braille to the PACMate hand held PC.
- Unparalleled support for Internet browsing allows you to navigate and read HTML websites.

Get started today working with all your Microsoft applications using JAWS, the world's most popular screen reader. Developed for computer users whose vision loss prevents them from seeing screen content, JAWS reads aloud what's on the PC screen.

JAWS supports a host of applications

JAWS supports Microsoft Office XP, 2000, 2003, and 2007, Groupwise, Adobe Acrobat and Reader, Corel Word Perfect, Internet Explorer 5,6 and 7, Lotus Notes, MSN Messenger, Skype and many more applications. At Blazie we are experts in customising JAWS to work with your in house third party or proprietary software using the powerful JAWS scripting language.

JAWS reads the screen aloud

JAWS' multilingual Eloquence speech synthesiser speaks through your computer's sound card, reading information and providing access to a wide range of informative, education and job related applications. Set up is easy and with interactive talking installation so that sighted assistance is not required. New users will appreciate the included Basic Training Tutorial in DAISY format with test and audio instruction to help them understand how to navigate the Windows environment with JAWS. A free, fully functional demonstration version of the FSReader DAISY player application is included.

Unmatched Braille support

JAWS also provides customisable Braille output in addition to, or instead of, speech.

More Features

- Authorisation and registration can be done over the Internet. Alternative authorisation and registration can be arranged for those without Internet connections.
- Support is provided for user specific and shared profiles for JAWS configuration settings.
- JAWS supports remote access via Citrix and Terminal Services (extra authorisation is required).
- A fully developed help facility is available through a few short key strokes.
- As well as the powerful scripting language that Blazie uses to customise JAWS to your exact needs, JAWS also includes tools for customisation without the need for writing scripts.
